IN APPRECIATION

Mr. William E. Priest

MR. W. E. PRIEST came into the District of Columbia School system in 1889 to his subject, ancient history, and his love for the beautiful soon took possession of his mind. His teaching was a source of inspiration and a lasting memory to the hundreds of students who took his course. Their feeling for their instructor was very happily expressed in letters received on his retirement last June.

To his fellow members of the Western faculty, Mr. Priest was always friendly, always serene. But this does not indicate a supine complacency in an evil world. On the contrary he was always ready to bear his testimony against injustice, and to stand with those working for human betterment.

A lover of beauty in all its form, Mr. Priest was especially fond of Nature and it is a pleasure to think of him with leisure hours in his garden, with time to read and to write and to rest from his long and faithful service to the schools of Washington.

IN APPRECIATION

Fraulein Emma von Seyfried

THE WITH the retirement of Fraulein Emma von Seyfried, Western High School has lost one of its most popular and most able teachers. Fraulein von Seyfried had the ability to make her pupils deeply interested in her subject. This interest did not stop in the classroom but went on into the work of the German Club, Gluck Auf. It was the encouragement and help of Fraulein von Seyfried that kept this small but interested group together.

Before coming to Western in 1905, Fraulein von Seyfried had taught at the Cathedral School here in Washington, and prior to that at a private school on the Hudson. Fraulein von Seyfried has taught music, French, Spanish, and her native language, German. She spent a year in Brussels continuing her study of music and perfecting herself in conversational French. Here in America, she studied French at Middlebury, Vermont; Mt. Holyoke; and Wellesley. In Marburg, Germany, she studied German under the famous Dr. Vietor, an authority on phonetic speech. Just after retiring she took a course on Goethe at Weimar, Germany.

Her personality and her knowledge of her subject made her a popular teacher. Personal charm and sympathy endeared her to the students.

One of the many pleasant interludes which relieved the tedium of school life for Western students in 1933 was the spring play, "The Bat," by Mary Roberts Rinehart. Seeing a good mystery drama is one of the approved methods of forgetting cares and worries, and this play is one of the best and most thrilling which has ever been written. The plot concerns a clever and aristocratic old lady who has rented a summer home on Long Island, but is annoyed by sundry mysterious happenings. She sends for a detective, and from the moment of his arrival, the play moves swiftly and compellingly to an unexpected conclusion.

The heroine, Miss Dale Ogden, was played by beautiful Gerry Strong, whose delicate handling of the part shows her to be endowed with unusual talent. Her lover, Jack Bailey, was masterfully portrayed by the dark and handsome Preston Haines, and the arch criminal, "The Bat," was played no less strongly by Hugo Brooks. Betty Owens and Alexis Rovzar amused the audience highly by their antics as Lizzie, the maid, and Billy, the Japanese butler. Charles Sager, Duane Covert, Elizabeth

1933 WESTERNER

Brandes, Elbert Fentriss, and Robert Duncan also show great promise in playing the parts, respectively, of Richard Fleming, Reginald Beresford, Miss Cornelia van Gorder, an unknown man, and Doctor Wells.

Those having frail constitutions were warned not to see this play, for it was played for the most part in the flickering and weird shadows of candlelight, while strange rappings and mysterious events struck terror into the hearts of the audience. Two men are foully murdered in the midst of this appalling scene, and the nerves of actors and audience are sadly frayed before their assassin is discovered. However, a happy and unexpected conclusion brought to a close an evening of unusual entertainment.

Large and enthusiastic audiences attended both performances. Interest in the sale of tickets was greatly stimulated by the gift of a copy of "The Bat," autographed by Mrs. Rinehart, to the student selling the largest number of tickets.

Act I The Patio of Drinkwater's Sanitarium near the Mexican Border

WESTERN HIGH SCHOOL

"OH! DOCTOR"

Under the direction of Western's Music Department, the Glee Club presented on February 17-18 "Oh! Doctor," a comic operetta in two acts.

Near the Mexican border is a famous sanitarium and spring owned by Dr. Drinkwater, who has disowned his son because he married an actress. Dr. Drinkwater's wife has died, leaving her money to her orphaned granddaughter, Glory, on condition that she spend the last twenty-four hours before her twenty-first birthday with her grandfather.

But Glory is also an actress, and under contract for a picture in South America. So her friend Honor consents to impersonate her, taking her sick mother with her to the sanitarium as her foster mother, Mme. Chere. Complications begin when Glory, learning that her fiance, Bob, has gone to the sanitarium for a vacation, hurries there to explain before he meets Honor, and spoils everything. She also sends a letter to Bob by Honor. This letter was found by the colored boy, Rainbow, and it enjoyed a thrilling career for a short time, with several of the characters fast in its wake.

Philip, a ranch owner whose grandfather had quarreled with Dr. Drinkwater years before, stops with his men at the sanitarium in his search for a Mexican rustler. Philip falls in love with Honor. The arrival of the rustler further involves matters, but at the close of the twenty-four hours, during the birthday party, Glory discloses her identity and the fortunes of all concerned end happily.

The presentation of "Oh! Doctor" was an ambitious undertaking, but it proved a great success in all respects. It was the most difficult production of its kind yet put on by Western students. The production itself was under the competent direction of Miss Lynch and Mrs. Sanders, the extreme effectiveness of the scenery was due to the supervision of Miss Henderson and Miss Steuart. Many compliments are due the members of the cast and those who assisted in the production, for the unusually good effect of the whole operetta, something worthy of note in a production of this type.

The men of the stage crew are responsible for the effective scenery that accompanies our plays and operettas. Under the direction of faculty advisers they construct the sets, acting as painters, carpenters, electricians, and upholsterers. The boys and girls find themselves called upon to perform many and varied odd jobs some that seem amusing while other appear apparently impossible to the onlooker. They have been called upon to be anything from seamstresses to appearing as dead bodies. The group thoroughly enjoys its many and interesting activities.

GIRLS' SPORTS

THE GIRLS' "W" CLUB

The "W" Club is composed of girls who have won their letter through exceptional ability shown in the sports in which they participated. At the initial meeting Jane Kromer was elected president, Jean Smith, vice-president, Errol Essex, Treasurer and Elaine Essex, Secretary. When Jane Kromer graduated in February, Jean Smith filled the vacancy and Camille Jacobs was elected vice-president. Jean Smith's sudden departure gave Camille Jacobs the position of president, and Carol Laise was elected vice-president.

Besides taking duties in the locker rooms, on the steps, and in the lunch room during both noons, the first semester, the "W" Club girls also had duty during assemblies. Duty in the assemblies was continued, but the other duties were taken over by the Student Council.

At that time, we bought coal for some families and gave three families Christmas dinners. A gas bill was paid for a poor family out of the dues of the club, and toys were repaired and given to needy families. To increase our income, we sold candy at the school operetta.

The "W" Club also reproduced a show that was given in 1892, the first show ever produced at Western. A very successful social event closed the season.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

BASKETBALL at Western strives to furnish fun and exercise to a large number. The athletic department aims, not to develop individual star players, but rather to give equal opportunities to all interested players so that each girl has a chance for a team. The only requirements for trying out for basketball are that the aspirant be passing in her studies, and have a good heart. Since there is no place in life for the poor sport, any girls with warped ideas of fair play who turn up for basketball are soon ashamed of it. Playing side by side, many new girls at Western have found friends.

This year, a large number appeared at the first practice. On the third day, after some had dropped out on account of poor hearts or scholastic difficulties, there were 40 freshmen, 61 sophomores, 36 juniors, and 27 seniors.

From the 40 freshmen, about 12 girls had to be chosen for the class team. Practice started just after Thanksgiving. Mrs. Trennis and Virginia Jones, after teaching them the fundamentals, discovered some very good material. Genevieve Dean was selected Captain of the Freshmen, Betsy Butler was elected Captain of the Sophomores, Camille Jacob, of the Juniors, and Jean Smith, for the Seniors. Leila Holley was elected in the Senior group when Jean was forced to leave school.

From the Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, 3 teams each were chosen and coached for the tournament. This event was preceded by a series for practice only. In the tournament, the first teams played each other, the second team each other, etc.

HOCKEY

HOCKEY was played at Western last fall for the first time since 1925.

As soon as school started in September, the class in Physical Education Major II was out on the new field trying out new equipment and practising hockey fundamentals which had been learned during the preceding spring. Soon Physical Education Major I began playing also. With both these classes using the field twice a week, there was neither time nor material for other beginners in the school. Advanced players, however, were admitted and coached. Towards the end of the season, Miss Meyers picked, from all the candidates, two evenly matched teams, the Red and the White. These teams played against each other in order to practice for the Hockey Play Day.

The Hockey Play Day, the purpose of which was to promote interest in hockey among high school girls by choosing a mythical all-high team, was under the supervision of the Washington Field Hockey Association. All high schools were invited to send a team, but since Eastern and Tech felt that they were not in a suitable condition, only Western and Central girls were left to choose from. The play day was held on December 5, a perfect hockey day on Western's Athletic Field.

For twenty-five minutes Western's team played against Central's team so that the judges could see how individuals played with a team. Then the teams were mixed for twenty-five minutes. Western received eight out of the eleven places, but it must be remembered that our guests played on a strange field, without tunics, and facing the sun.

Those who received major letters were Betsy Butler, Jean Shuler, Janet Rastall, Louise Martin, Eleanor Wyvell, Jean Smith, Leila Holley, Betty Eliot, Carol Laise, and Sadah Ward. Curly Patterson and Polly Lewis received their letters for managership.

GIRLS' RIFLE TEAM

THE Girls' Rifle Team started their season almost immediately after school. The Captain, Marie Aimee Hall, and the two other girls, Eleanor Lyle and Melie Hatch, remaining from last year's team to instruct and coach these girls in preparation for the first matches.

October brought with it the first series of Bi-Weekly matches sponsored by the National Rifle Association which ended in December with the girls winning a silver cup for third place in Section B. The second series opened in January and closed the end of March when our girls tied with Turlock High School's Boys team of California for second place in Section B. A shoot-off was held in which the Western Girls came out victorious by one point thus adding another cup to Dr. Newton's trophy case. The high scores were as follows: Marie Aimee Hall—100, Babs Crea—100, Eleanor Lyle—97, and Ruth Magnusson—97.

The Inter-High matches which take place in May between the high schools of the city for the District championship started very successfully for Western. The girls won their first match from the girls of McKinley High School with a score of 846 to 811. Marie Aimee Hall and Melie Hatch were high with total scores of 179 and 175 respectively. It is hoped by the Captain that the girls will be equally successful against Central as practice has been very regular and the girls have shown a great deal of interest and enthusiasm throughout the whole year.

The Team wishes to thank Miss Metzgeroth and Miss Stevens, the faculty advisers, for their cheerful and constant co-operation without which the team could never have arrived at such a degree of success.

WESTERN HIGH SCHOOL

GIRLS' TENNIS

GIRLS' tennis activities at Western are limited to an annual spring tournament. Any girl may enter her class tournament for the class championship. Each girl plays until she is defeated. The class champions play for the school championship.

A "W" is awarded to the winner of the whole tournament while the class champions receive a minor letter—a red "T" on a white circle.

This year Miss Myers is offering tennis to the Physical Education Major girls as a regular sport. Jane Kromer and Virginia Jones will teach these girls at the Montrose Courts. This will be the first time that tennis has actually been taught at Western.

Outstanding tennis players signed up for this year's tournament are seniors

Jean Shuler, Betsy Butler, and Leila Hatchett.

GIRLS' TRACK

DURING the spring Western girls turn their attention and energy to the preparation for the annual track meet, to be held this year on Monday, June 12.

Practices are held twice a week under Mrs. Trenis's supervision. On

The winner of the whole track meet is given a "W", and the runner up, a minor letter. The award is based on a point system. Four places are given in each

GIRLS' RIDING

THE Girls' Riding Club of Western began three years ago. It was started for the convenience of girls who did not know how to ride and wanted to learn, and for entire control was given to Dorothy. Upon her graduation at the end of the first year, the classes continued under the supervision of Eleanor Wyvell.

There were originally two classes that went out on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons after school. One was a beginner's class and the other for more advanced Western inaugurated its 1932 football season, and dedicated the new stadium with dedicatory exercises, held before the game. Included addresses by Dr. Frank J. ... Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Allan Davis, principal of Roosevelt High, and Mr. George F. Whitwell of the Board of Education. A tablet honoring the late S. Duncan Bradley, through whose efforts the new stadium materialized, was unveiled by his son, James B. Bradley.

During the opening period of the game, Western scored its first touchdown by a run fumbled by St. Albans. Reynolds put the ball over the goal line, which was followed by a placement kick for the point after the only score in the third period. A 3-yard run by Henderson around the left end. Their try for the extra point failed, because of the strength of Western's line. A series of line plays in the next quarter by Western carried the ball off St. Albans' 14-yard line, where Huck Hile made the final spurt over the goal line, much to the surprise of the St. Albans team. A well-

Central became the next victim of Western's wrath. Old grudges were renewed the game with the spirit of do or die, and came out on top. St. Albans got 175 yards in scrimmage, while Central with 2 downs and 37 yards.

WESTERN HIGH SCHOOL

The first touchdown came in the second period after a sustained offense of 80 yards down the field, which Central valiantly tried to resist, only to be overcome by Teehan's final rush through and over the goal line tackle. While no scoring was done in the second and third quarters, in the fourth, Central tried a forward pass that came to rest in the arms of Teehan, who galloped down the field as far as Central's yard line. An end run by Corcoran put the ball over for a final score of 13 to 0.

The first stumbling block to Western's line of progress occurred in the battle ended with the ball in the possession of n, who found the going rather difficult necessitating a punt that was fumbled by Brinkman of Tech, to be recovered by Nye on yard line. A series of ine plunges gained little for Western with the result that the ball again traveled via the punt route. A fumbled pass by Cormley, of Tech, recovered by Nye, put the ball in Western's possession on Tech's 4-yard line from which place it was finally pushed over by Teehan. Western, however, failed to make the extra point.

In the second half, Tech opened a big bag of tricks that baffled Western to no little extent. The strong line of Western's defense showed signs of disintegrating when Tech began its reverse plays and triple passes, resulting in yardage being gained on almost every play. Notwithstanding this, only one touchdown was gained by Tech during each of the remaining quarters. Cormley's kicks added the extra points in each instance.

During the first half, Western's line, consisting of Nye, Krouse, Camage, Biover, Buscher, and Groettum, set up a stone line defense against Tech's plungers, while in the second half Lynham, Corcoran, Teehan, and Hilleary succeeded in holding the strong Tech back field within reasonable bounds at all times.

1933 WESTERNER

Eastern was Western's next opponent and although the latter was defeated by the small margin of 7 to 0, considerable doubt remains as to which was the better team. Keegin, a former Gonzaga boy playing for Eastern displayed an excellent brand of football. His speed and leg driving force through the Western line baffled the opposing players. Fortunately, the breaks permitted him to score the only touchdown of the game. Eastern's defense was almost impregnable, as none of the Western backs could get away for even a slight start. Western's secondary defense cut down many a ball-toter, while Nye, Camage, Busher and Wynne, on the line, smeared play after play much to the discomfort of Eastern.

The next game with National Training School, played at Bradley Field, found Western a much different team. The boys decided to win or pass out in the attempt, because of the fact that up to that time, the National Training School team had an undefeated record by any local scholastic team, and to defeat them meant considerable glory and prestige.

Soon after the game had opened a pass from Corcoran to Goettum, good for 25 yards, put the ball on the 10-yard line. Two line thrusts then put Reynolds over the goal line for the lone score of the day. The crucial moment came in the last minute of play when our team was backed up to its 3 yard line. Then Western's stalwart line defense, aided by a 5-yard penalty inflicted upon the Trainers, showed its true prowess and prevented a touchdown being made. Lynham, Corcoran, Teehan, Nye and Goettum were conspicuous for their ability to smear more than one well-arranged play of the Training School team.

The final game of the season was played on November 24 at Bradley Field, where Gonzaga fell victim to the well coordinated team of Western with a score of 27-0, which balanced Western's defeat of the previous year. The first half found Gonzaga in extreme difficulty, trying to evade Western's agile defense. Several fumbles by Gonzaga put Western in scoring position, where with the outstanding work of "Huck" Heary and "Reds" Reynolds, Western pushed the ball over for two consecutive touchdowns, and a like number of kicked placements. After considerable rushing in the third quarter, Gonzaga attempted a forward pass that was interrupted by Nye, who, with three opposing team players close behind him, ran 43 yards for a touchdown. Mediocre playing on the part of Gonzaga marked the fourth quarter when Western made its fourth touchdown.

BASKETBALL 1933

WESTERN'S basketball activities of the 1932-33 season opened with Coach Moore's call for basketball candidates. This omnipotent cry was answered from all sides, virtually before it had thoroughly circulated the corridors of the school. The result was a turnout of over fifty boys among whom were several of Western's last year veterans in the persons of Harry Swanson, "Hinky" Schneide and Bob Brennan. The days of hard, continuous practice which followed uncovered a goodly number of prospective varsity material for the coming season. Therefore it was with high aspirations that the supporters of the Red and White looked forward to the opening of the Inter-High Basketball.

The opening game of Western's season was played on December 2, 1932, in the school gymnasium against the High of Chevy Chase. Although the game was minus any brilliant offensive or defensive playing on the part of the Western quintet, it was of great value to the boys of the Red and White in pointing out many hitherto unnoticed weak spots, which, it was hoped, could be corrected before the Big Series. Coach Moore with this purpose in mind, completed his arrangements for one of the most extensive preliminary schedules ever planned for a Western team, embracing a total of twenty-eight games.

to "do or die." The Roosevelt quint, however, had about the same spirit, besides possessing what they knew to be unsuspected strength in the shooting ability of Cavanaugh at Right Forward and Harris at Left Guard. The first quarter opened with a rush in which the Georgetown boys gained the upper hand. This they held until the beginning of the second quarter, when a successful foul shot and a field goal made respectively by Harris and Grimm gave the Rough Riders a 10-8 lead. After this they were never threatened, and save for a brief rally in the third quarter, Western never displayed the fine form shown in the first period.

This game, like the preceding one, was equally unsuccessful in the way of victory for the Western five. Nevertheless, Coach Artie Boyd of Tech deemed it of sufficient importance to necessitate the use of his entire squad. At the end of the first quarter he began to use his second strings and later his third rate men, after the regulars had pried up a 15-1 lead. This comfortable margin was maintained until the beginning of the fourth quarter, when Corcoran and Brennan commenced a determined Western drive. This appeared so formidable that, after the twelfth basket had been Even then, they appeared irrepressible until Reichardt and Daly of Tech stepped in to clinch the game at 45-24.

A brilliant first quarter rally opened the Western vs. Eastern game by which the former succeeded in gaining a 10-7 lead. The Red and White basketekers then decided to relax slightly during which time the Easterners managed to tie the score 10-10 to close the period. At the beginning of the second session Bassin, of Eastern, sank two foul shots to place the Capitol Hill boys ahead. After this they were never threatened while rolling up a 44-25 lead, which after a brief spurt on the part of the Westerners in the last quarter, was the final score.

The concluding game of the first division of the Inter-High Series came on January 20, with Central. The first half, with its 39-10 score favoring the Centralites, seemed prophetic of the Georgetown boys sustaining what is known as a "wholesale slaughter." In the second session, however, Western, lead by Corcoran and Forney, managed to confine the Central quint to a total of only 12 baskets while they secured 14. The game ended in a 51-24 Central victory.

The second game with Roosevelt came on January 24 in the Tech gymnasium. This game somehow lacked the fire and spirit that was expected. Neither team seemed to strike their stride until the concluding minutes of the last quarter, when the Rough Riders managed to break loose to run up a score that closed the game 46-25 their favor. The game with Tech, played on January 27, in its eventual result, was practically a repetition of the first, with the score 56-21 in favor of Tech.

Unexpected power was the outstanding feature of Western's last two games. In the first of these, Western vs. Eastern, the former was administered a heart-breaking defeat when, in an overtime contest, the latter managed to nose out the Red and White by the slim margin of one point. In the opening quarters, the Lincoln Parkers gave evidence of repeating their former "walk away" victory when they ran up a score which stood at the middle of the last session, 25-15. Then the Western boys broke loose. Now thoroughly under the control of Bernie Bierl, Jimmy Corcoran, and Bill McPherson, the ball was placed again and again through the hoop to tie the score 25-25, at the end of the regular game.

The extra period found Eastern, not fully understanding how such a miraculous change had been wrought in the Westernites, playing cautious ball. However, Tom Nolan, of Eastern, managed to slip over a field goal to give the Light Blue a two-point lead. Swanson then sank a foul shot, but the spell was broken and try as they would Western was unable to again score, and the Easterners triumphed 27-26.

With the end of the Inter-High Basketball Series, from which Western, for the second consecutive year, had emerged without a single victory, the Georgetown boys decided to efface these bitter results by downing Land High of Charlottesville 31-16, Washington and Lee 24-18, and Landon 37-21.

LIGHTWEIGHT BASKETBALL TEAM

R. Livingstone manager

LIGHTWEIGHT BASKETBALL

WHEN a large but inexperienced group of boys reported for basketball at the opening of the 1932-1933 season, it was evident that, although many of them were not then of varsity calibre, they would make splendid material for future seasons. To carry these men on the varsity squad where they would have "warmed the bench" day after day throughout the season, would have done them more harm than good. Therefore, Coach Moore, digging into the recesses of his fertile mind, revived the plan of having a lightweight team. This plan had been employed and found extremely successful a few years ago, but had been abandoned lately because of lack of interest.

The first weeks were spent in intensive instruction and preliminary training on the fundamentals of the game, in an effort to develop the smoothness and unity of play which would be necessary for a successful season. When the team was deemed sufficiently prepared, Coach Moore and Manager Cox compiled a schedule of thirteen outside games, which were looked forward to with great enthusiasm and interest by both players and supporters.

The first game was played with the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Lightweights, from which contest Western emerged, after a hard fight, holding the upper hand, 21-19. Floor Captain Bobby Bernstein totaled 9 points to lead his men to victory. Next in the schedule appeared several games with the boys of St. Albans who were first met upon the gym floor of Western, and achieving an old ambition, the Red and White

BASEBALL

WESTERN opened its 1933 Baseball Season on March 30, by handing the National Training School a "trundling" victory. The game, which led the spectators, was a clear indication of the excellent prospects facing the Red and White boys, and of the thorough instruction and drill in the fundamentals of the game by Coach Moore during the weeks of practice preceding the season.

Several weeks later, the team encountered the boys of Episcopal High, Virginia, and to the great glee of all Westerners, walked away with a 15-3 victory. This contest marks the first victory that Western has gained over Episcopal in five years. The outstanding features of the game were Wood's double, Brennan's triple, DeStephan's aggregate of five singles, and Ready's fine pitching.

WESTERN HIGH SCHOOL

The boys next, by making full use of a powerful batting attack, downed Hyattsville 16-11. Bill McPherson pitched the entire game for Western, and managed to keep the suburbanites well up in the air, while his teammates ran up the successful score. Jimmy Corcoran caused a great deal of excitement when he started Western's attack by cracking out a homer in the early part of the game.

The first inter-high game found the Red and White boys badly off form, when they took a 14-7 thrashing from Tech. Although the boys outhit the Manual Trainers, they failed to use this advantage, and the Techites triumphed mainly because of errors and wild pitching on the part of their opponents.

However, as poor as the prospects are at the present time, the boys, with the full support of the school, are looking with great expectation to the coming games, in which they hope fully to redeem themselves.

basketers snowed the Saints under 49-11. However, in the two return games, the Cathedral boys returned the compliment by handing Western two stinging defeats, 27-24 and 40-5.

In the first contest with the Georgetown Club for boys, the Lightweights lost, 34-27 and 46-29. The second game with Bethesda-Chevy Chase proved to be the most interesting one of the season, although Western took the short end of the 32-28 final score. Three extra-periods were necessary to determine the winner.

After trailing the Chasers by a close margin for almost the entire game the Red and White boys stepped out in the last few minutes of the game to tie the score, 20-20. Each overtime period was charged with excitement as the ball passed from team to team with victory almost in the grasp of one and then another. Finally, after a mighty drive, the Marylanders sank several long shots to win the game.

ALTHOUGH the outlook for the tennis team this year appeared favorable in view of the return of Spencer Howell, District Playground Champion, Bobby Doyle, District Boy Champion, and John Cochran, a member of last year's team. Those who filled in admirably at the other positions include Stewart Robey, Carlton Saunders, Jack Waddill, Pete Alcott, and Ed Harned. Eugene Owens, runner-up to Howell in the School Tournament encountered scholastic difficulties in the first advisory, but played well in the later matches.

Manager Leasure booked fifteen opponents, including outside trips to play Mt. St. Joseph's, Hagerstown, Maryland Frosh, and Woodberry Forest. Showing a sad lack of practice, the racqueteers lost to the usually weak St. Alban's team, in the first meet of the year, but after gaining some of that much needed practice at Wardman Park, managed to defeat three strong opponents. Mt. St. Joseph, Friends, and Maryland Freshmen. Mr. Bish's lads are also confident of winning the inter-high crown, which is being contested for this year by Central, Tech, and Eastern. As these opponents have not shown much promise in their pre-series matches it is generally conceded that Western will retain their virtual monopoly on the championship, which they have captured every season since 1928.

Up to the present time the Western team has won three matches and has lost only to the powerful Georgetown Prep team in the first match of the season, when it was in sad need of practice. The boys later scored victories over Woodberry Forest, and Takoma-Silver Springs.

In their first inter-high match Western defeated Tech by a score of 5-4, thus at this time placing them in a tie with Central for first place, each team having won one match in the series. The next match of the series played with Central at the Columbia Country Club, resulted in another victory for Western, with the score 8½ to ½. This leads the team to hope for an undisputed lead in the championship race.

RIFLE TEAM

STARTING with only five veterans at the beginning of the season, the Western Rifle Team has increased until there are at present ten members, who have week in and week out, spent laborious hours in continuous practice in their efforts to maintain the splendid reputation established by past teams. This year the team has been extremely successful in winning all of its telegraph matches, easily surpassing the scores sent in by the Edward Little High, Portland, Maine, Knoxville High, Knoxville, Tenn.; Grover Cleveland High, St. Louis, Mo.

Maryland University Freshman, Navy Plebes, and McKinley High have been met and defeated in shoulder-to-shoulder matches. Victories over the first two proved to be sources of great satisfaction, especially as Western gained its fifth consecutive victory over the Navy Plebes, and its third over the boys of College Park.

The Rifle Team has also been very successful in the bi-weekly matches, held all over the United States by the National Rifle Association, winning the first and second series in both divisions. With its present long lead it hopes to capture the third series which comes to an end in June.

The team has other inter-high matches scheduled in the near future with Central, Eastern, and Tech. In all of these the Western boys have high hopes of attaining the phenomenal success of securing, for the sixth consecutive time, the inter-high championship, with an undefeated record.

U-PUN MY WORD

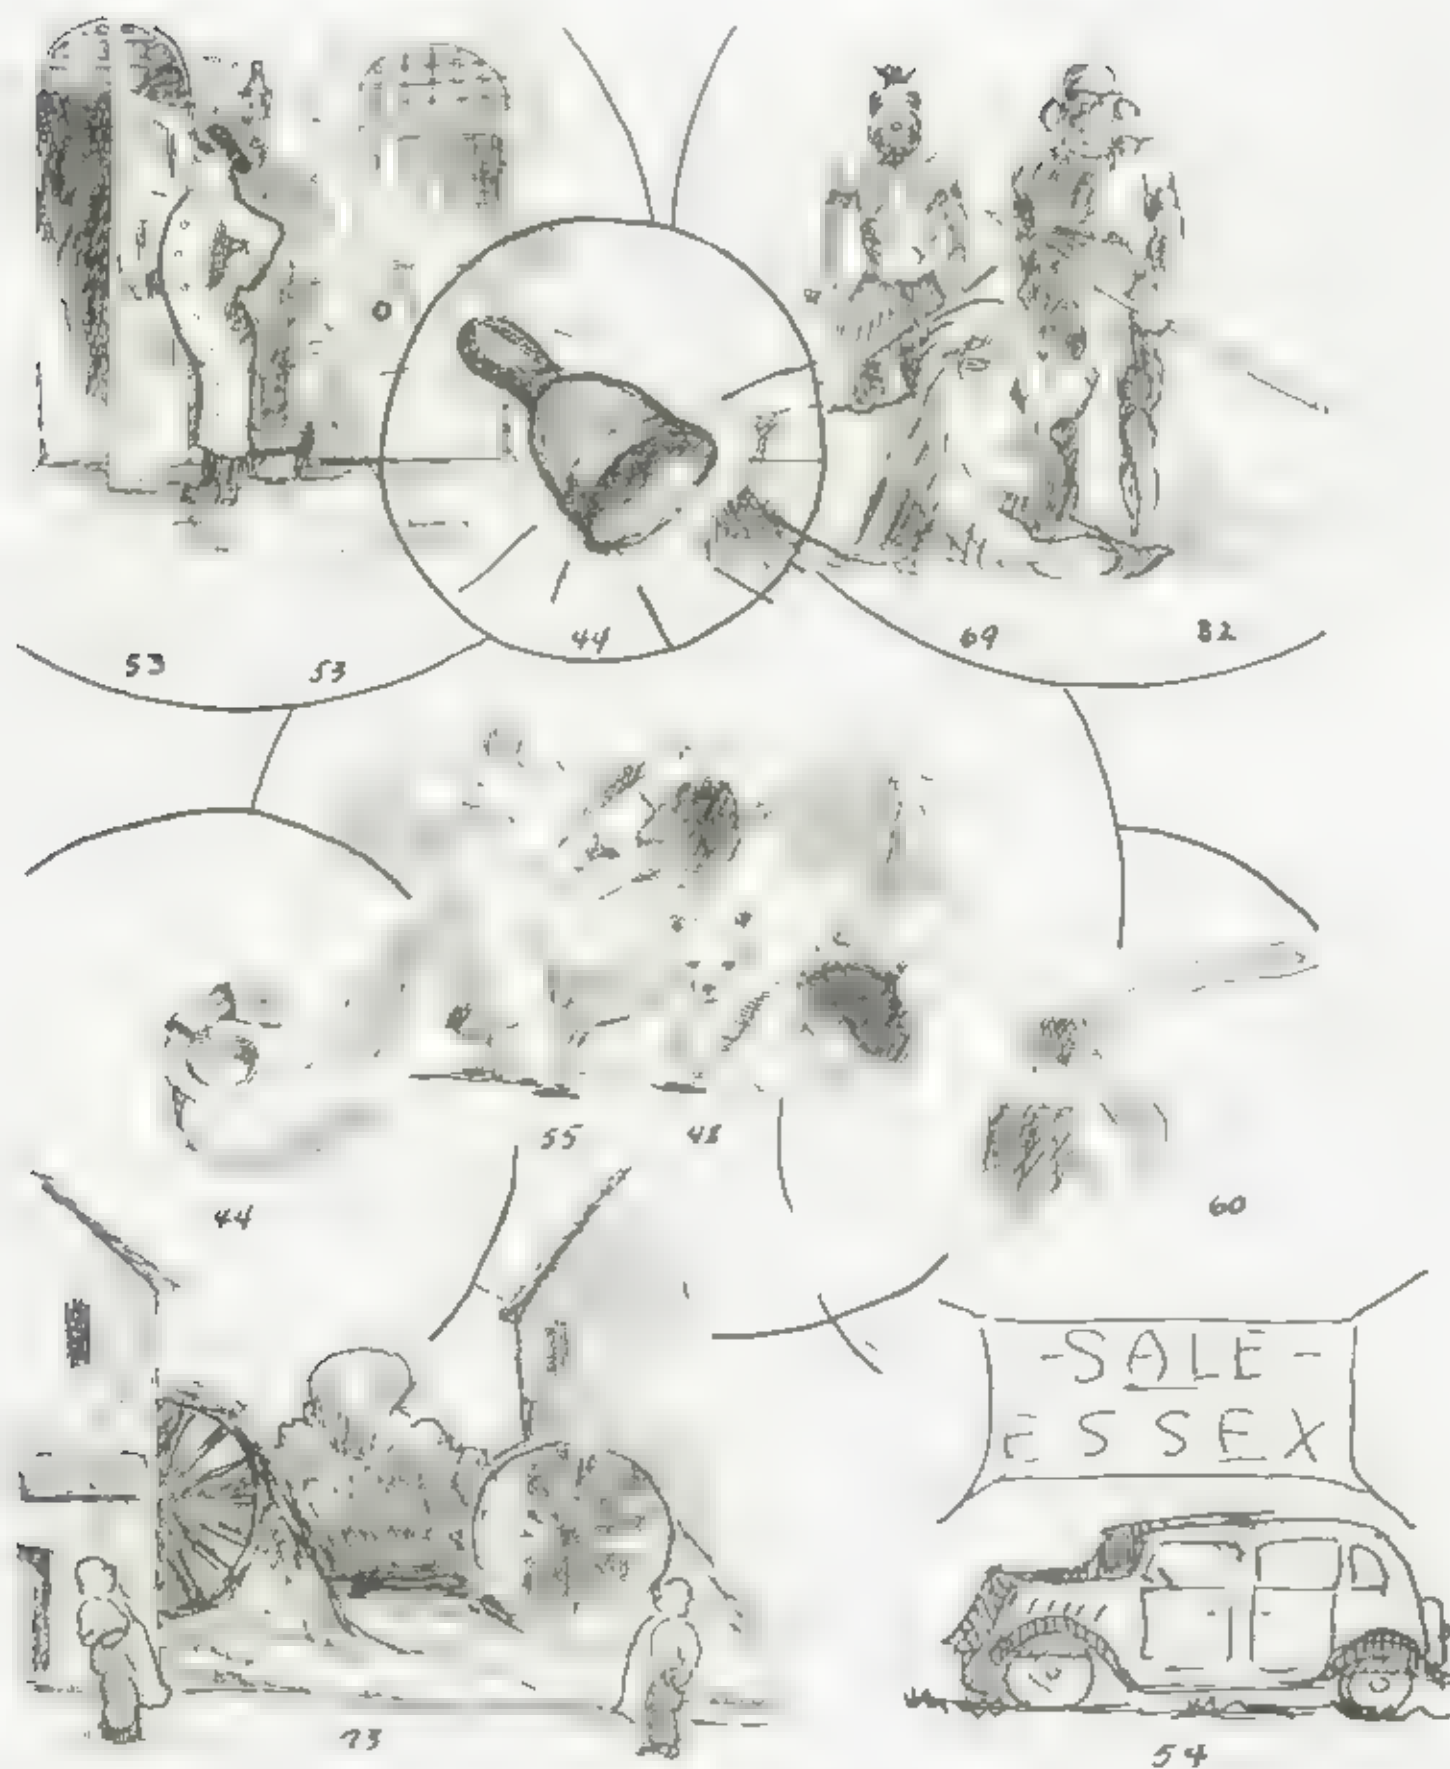

ALL is quiet within the woodland glade. Suddenly there enters a Strong huntsman, a gun on his shoulder, a Hatchett in his Belt. He is searching for a Brown Baer, which he has tracked through the Snow to this spot. He bends Lowe to tie his Schuh. While doing this he sees a Bird. (We don't know what kind of a bird this is, but we suspect it to be a Swanson.) He Cox his gun and fires. The shot Pierces the bird's breast and it drops into the nearby water, ruffling the smooth Surface of the Brook.

When he sees his good fortune, he acts like a Wildman, for this is the first fresh meat he has had in Weeks. He tramps across the Akers of fields to his farmhouse, and takes the Lidoff the kettle. The bird is a Jewell, containing just the right amount of Callerys. (Let us now shed a few tears for the poor beast, cut off in the prime of life. Never again will it Hatch its eggs or Peck the trees in sheer Young exuberance.) The hunter does his own cooking, which is real Thrift and saves him the Price of many a meal out.

He considers his repast fit for a King, but retribution is not Long in overtaking him, and he soon feels Sharp Paynes in his stomach. A friend passing by, sees that the hunter is dying, and says, "Repent ere 'tis too late. Just Sadah Ward and I'll send for the Bishop."

The dying hunter raises himself slowly, and replies, "Asher is nice of you, but I have been expecting this since——," and her his voice fades away. The friend anxiously asks, "Since when?" and the hunter, making one final effort, says "Sin-sheimer," and dies. And that's Hal!
